BERLIN

BULLETIN

Berlin, Oct. 11—(AP)—DNB declared today Russian Marshal Semeon Budyenney's southern flank army had been shattered so thoroughly that Russia faces complete loss of the industrially important Donets basin soon. "And with it," DNB added, Russia faces "loss of the hope of replacing even partially her lost war materials."

Berlin, Oct. 11.— (AP) —A special High Command communique announced today that the battle in the sea of Azov zone is over and that the bulk of the Russian ninth and 18th armies had been destroyed. The communique said 64,325 prisoners were captured and war booty included 126 tanks, 510 guns and other equipment.

Berlin, Oct. 11—(AP)—German forces are rapidly annihilating Russian soldiers trapped in the great encirclement battle of the central front and on a narrow strip of land north of the sea of Azov, the Germans officially announced today.

While Nazi columns were reported striking at both the northern and southern flanks of Moscow's far-flung defenses in apparent attempts to encircle the capital, the High Command said the number of prisoners and booty taken on the center "is steadily increasing."

The High Command also said eleven Russian attempts to break out on the Leningrad front yesterday failed.

The crushing of the Russians north of the Sea of Azov was said to be approaching an end while the annihilation fighting on the center still proceeded at a fast pace.

The High Command said the body of the commander of the

MOSCOW

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Oct. 11—German attacks in the Vyazma sector were repulsed overnight and the invaders suffered heavy losses, the Soviet government declared today, but the Red army acknowledged that its situation still was critical on that vital front.

Both sides apparently were pouring men into the huge, 10-day-old struggle in which the Russians said a German plan of encirclement had been balked and the offensive before Moscow apparently slowed down.

The communique said the Red army had braced with the fresh strength of reserves sent out to stop the drive toward the Red capital.

Red Star, the army organ, said reserve German divisions were rushing into the incessant battle also.

"The danger is great," Red Star declared, "it is up to us to stop him and not let him go any farther."

Concentrating huge forces of infantry, tanks and artillery, the Germans were said to have thrust a salient toward Vyazma, in the center of the battle area mid-way between Smolensk and Moscow and at the focus of the heaviest German onslaught

PITTSBURGH HOTELS STILL REMAIN CLOSED

Pittsburgh, Oct. 11—(AP)—Leading hotels in Pittsburgh remained closed today after striking hotel workers for the second time rejected a contract offer which, negotiators said, would have provided an overall increase of 13½ per cent in wages.

Mayor Cornelius D. Scully, who has assisted in attempts to settle the dispute, said there would be no letup in mediation efforts and scheduled another conference among the disputants today.

The strike was called 11 days ago by an AFL union which demanded a 20 per cent wage hike for a majority of the workers with some lower deviations for workers in higher pay brackets.

RAIDS RESUMED ACROSS CHANNEL

London, Oct. 11—(AP)—More than 200 British bombers roared across the channel in waves during the night as the RAF, taking advantage of improved weather conditions, renewed its offensive against Germany with thrusts at the industrial Ruhr and Rhineland, authoritative sources announced today.

Simultaneous assaults were launched on docks at Rotterdam, Ostend, Dunkerque and Bordeaux on the German-occupied channel coast, these sources declared.

The raids on Germany were the first in nine nights, weather having prevented any extensive offensive operations in more than a week.

The Air Ministry disclosed that

PROPOSAL MADE PRESIDENT ACT TO END CONFLICT

Senators Nye and Adams Suggest Roosevelt Offer To Mediate European Peace as Aid-to-Britain Measure is Speeded

HEARINGS NEXT WEEK

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

Washington, Oct. 11.— (AP) — Amid administration and congressional efforts to give more and more aid to Great Britain and Russia, two senators—Adams (D-Col) and Nye (R-ND)—suggested today that President Roosevelt tender his good offices to bring about peace in Europe.

"I am one of the minority group which believes that the president might offer to help in bringing about peace," Adams told reporters.

Unless peace does come in Europe, Adams said, it was possible that "the United States may find itself in a position where we will be fighting the whole world by ourselves." He added the opinion that Great Britain would be under no obligation to the United States to continue the war if she found it to be to her own interest to make peace.

Nye asserted that Mr. Roosevelt undoubtedly could "make a substantial contribution toward peace"

With the new $5,985,000,000 lease-lend appropriation safely through the house, leaders turned their attention to hastening that aid-to-Britain measure through the senate and to obtaining prompt enactment of a neutrality revision bill permitting the arming of American merchant ships.

Although a substantial number of congressmen favor broadening the armed-ship measure to eliminate the present prohibition against American ships traveling into belligerent ports or designated combat zones, the house foreign affairs committee voted last night to consider only the repeal of the section which forbids arming merchant ships, limit the hearings to two days, and hold them behind closed doors The hearings will start Monday.

Authoritative sources said today that if and when American merchant ships are armed, trained naval crews will almost certainly man their guns

GASOLINE GOING INTO OHIO TO BE REDUCED A FIFTH

Cleveland Oct 11—(AP)—Ohio will lose a fifth of its gasoline supply starting next Wednesday unless the government again modifies an order prohibiting shipments from eastern states oil industry circles declared today.

The order—issued by the OPM Sept 30 at the request of Petroleum Co-ordinator Harold L Ickes—was effective the next day Virtually all refiners obtained extensions to Oct 15, however, after protesting they were given no warning of the edict and that it would disrupt marketing arrangements and subject Ohio to an unexpected shortage

Based on August figures 21 61 per cent of Ohio's taxable gallonage comes from some of the 17 eastern states where a gasoline shortage has been proclaimed Of the 144,000,000 gallons listed for taxation in Ohio in August, the principal eastern suppliers were Pennsylvania with 24,285,171 gallons and West Virginia with 6,147,709 gallons Comparatively small shipments from other states included New Jersey, 667,799 gallons, Maryland, 30,107, Virginia 17,555 and New York, 15,966.

An industry committee which met at Pittsburgh this week with a representative of the petroleum co-ordinator's office recommended that Pennsylvania and West Virginia be excluded entirely from the no-shipment ban. One Cleveland official who declined to be quoted by name said that as a result of the session "many executives are confident that the order will be forgotten either through further extensions or its outright removal"

Earle Not Candidate For the Governorship

Philadelphia Oct 11 Former Governor George H Earle today put a stop to any talk about his possible candidacy in the 1942 gubernatorial race

"Under no condition so long as the war lasts will I consider reentering politics" he said last night in a cabled statement from Sofia where he is serving as U. S minister to Bulgaria

In fact Earle said, if his diplomatic position is terminated, he'll join the navy "if they will have me"

The 51-year old Philadelphia Democrat could offer the navy a distinguished World War record He won the navy cross for bravery in extinguishing a fire on a sub-chaser he commanded. Also, he served with the army.

Earle has been minister to Bulgaria since February 1940 His last political campaign in the state was the unsuccessful U. S Senate race he waged in 1938.

A Bargain We Can't Afford to Pass Up!

THE PEOPLE OF WARREN have an unusual opportunity, through the generosity of Mrs J P Jefferson to pay off an indebtedness at around sixty-five cents on the dollar

Or, figure it this way: Every year the Community Chest has to raise about a thousand dollars just to pay interest on the Y. W. C. A. mortgage There's a current slogan to the effect that "Fifteen more payments and she's ours." The trouble with this debt is that after fifteen more payments she 'ain't ours' at all—we are just where we were fifteen years ago, and still paying

So it doesn't take a lot of crazy brain work to figure out that we are far better off to take the fifteen thousand and be rid of the annual outlay. But we can pay it off for two-thirds when for every two dollars we pay in another is added by a generous donor, it certainly looks like a bargain to me.

It's too good to pass up.

OUTPUT OF TANKS IS IN PERIL

Assembly Lines Face Possible Shut-down as Result of Jurisdictional Labor Dispute Between The AFL and CIO While Warning is Received That Further Schism in The House of Labor is Possible

WORK IS STOPPED AT A DRYDOCK IN BROOKLYN

By the Associated Press

Army tank assembly lines faced a possible shut-down today as a result of a jurisdictional labor dispute between the AFL and CIO, while from the former group's national convention at Seattle there came a warning that there might be a further schism in the house of labor.

The threat to continued tank tank production arose at the plant of the Spicer Manufacturing Company of Toledo, O., makers of approximately 70 per cent of the transmissions for army tanks "jeeps," and half-tractor military vehicles.

The company has a contract with CIO United Automobile Workers and employs 2,200. The firm gets many parts, however, from a subsidiary, the Hillsdale, (Mich) Steel Products Company The AFL recently won a collective bargaining election among Hillsdale's 800 workers and Spicer's CIO men have served notice that they will not handle the AFL-made parts When existing stocks are exhausted, Spicer officials said that production, already slowed to a trickle, will stop.

Federal and state labor mediators sought to end the dispute and a conference has been called for today.

The rumblings of further possible trouble in labor circles came from James M. Duffy, president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters He told the AFL convention at Seattle that domination by large unions would bring about "not two great labor organizations but three—and God forbid that should happen"

Duffy said eight or ten big unions controlled the AFL and that "there are sufficient members now affiliated with AFL who, unless the trend of power stops will be ready to participate in a third group

CORPS OF SHOCK TROOPS TO HELP DEFEND BRITAIN

London, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A war office disclosure that Britain has organized a special corps of British shock troops skilled in sea landings and guerilla warfare was taken in some quarters today as foreshadowing more and bigger raids upon German-occupied soil The foray last March, in which eleven German ships were sunk and 225 men were captured on the Norwegian island of Lofoten, was cited as the type of work the new striking force might be called upon to execute

Details of the corps' extensive field exercises were disclosed in London newspapers at a moment when sections of the public and press were demanding to know what Britain has done, is doing or plans to do to relieve German pressure upon Soviet Russia

The rigorous regime of the corps forced marches on short

NEW LEASE LEND BILL IN SENATE

Bearing Speedy and Overwhelming House Approval and Minus Any Ban on Aid to Russia, Measure Providing $5,985,000,000 Goes to Upper Body With Promise of Immediate Action

ALL AMENDMENTS ARE EASILY TURNED DOWN

Washington, Oct. 11—(AP)—Bearing speedy and overwhelming house approval and minus any ban on aid to Russia, the new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease bill reached the senate today with promise of early action.

As in the house where the only major fight revolved around fruitless attempts to prohibit any of the fund being used to help the Soviet government, the senate faced a similar controversy, but administration leaders expressed confidence the house action would be sustained.

The measure, bringing to $12,985,000,000 the appropriations for supplying war equipment and food to the nations resisting Hitler, passed the house late yesterday, 328 to 67, after only two days debate. Two hundred thirty Democrats, 96 Republicans, one Farmer-Laborite and one American Laborite voted for the bill on final passage. Eight Democrats, 56 Republicans and three Progressives voted no

The no-aid-to-Russia amendment, offered by Rep Robert F. Rich (R-Pa) lost on a standing vote 162 to 21, with most of the "aye" votes coming from the Republican side.

The huge bill went through without a change in the money sections as reported by the appropriations committee. Amendment after amendment seeking slashes in the sums allocated to various categories was easily rejected.

Chairman Adams (D-Colo) of the senate appropriations sub-committee which will handle the bill in that branch said hearings would begin Tuesday and the bill would be reported by next week-end The senate is expected to take it up the following Tuesday

House debate on the Rich anti-Russian amendment highlighted in otherwise drab discussion, with opponents disavowing any support of Communism and underscoring the need to help any nation resisting the Axis

YOUTHS INJURED IN CRASH ON THE KIANTONE ROAD

Three local youths were treated at the Warren General Hospital about 1:15 o'clock this morning for injuries received in an accident which occurred on the Kiantone road when the car in which they were riding skidded and struck a tree after leaving the highway.

William Bertch, 19, R. D. 1, driver of the car, was treated for a scalp wound; Robert Schumann, 20, R. D. 1, sustained cuts about the head, with a laceration over the right ear which required 13 stitches to close while Preston Biggs, Jr., 18, also of R. D. 1, received minor bruises and a laceration on the right elbow. All were treated and discharged.

According to patrolmen of the local barracks of the Pennsylvania Motor Police, who investigated, Bertch was passing another machine when the car went into a skid and left the highway, striking a tree on the left side of the road. The three young men were thrown from the car. The mishap occurred at a point about two miles north of the intersection at Akeley.

The youths were brought to the hospital here by Esty Lyle, Elmer Hagstrom and Jack Farr, all of Warren.

Patrolmen estimated that damage to the car, a 1941 Studebaker, was about $550.

London, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Authoritative sources said today they feared "considerable numbers of Russian divisions" may have been encircled in a German offensive on the central front.

These sources said it was becoming increasingly clear that there are two distinct drives rather than one gigantic operation developing in that area.

The first, they said is the thrust north of the Smolensk-Moscow railway designed to converge east of Vyazma with an attack northeast from Roslavl toward Yukhnov along the road to Moscow.

The second drive farther south was said to have taken the form of a break-through on the Bryansk-Glukov line directed toward Orel important junction on the Moscow-Kharkov railway which the Germans have captured.

TWO TOTS LEFT AT POLK REMAIN UNIDENTIFIED

Polk, Oct. 11.—(AP)—They're just a couple of kids called "Sis" and "Sonny." No one here knows their right names, the names of their parents, or where they came from.

A week's investigation since the chubby, well-kept sister and brother were abandoned at Polk State School has yielded not a single clue to their past.

In the half-light of dawn last Saturday an automobile drove up to the school for maldefectives, Pennsylvania's largest institution of its kind with a patient population of 3,000. The "mystery" children were let out of the car, and it sped away.

A night watchman, unable to get the car's license number, gave his attention to the tots. A piece of paper marked "Sis," in pencil, was pinned to the little girl's coat. Similarly the boy, wearing a sweater and overalls, was labelled "Sonny."

While police searched for their parents, authorities at the school were unable to get any helpful information from the children, more than the girl was 3 and the boy 4.

"They're so young we can't get much out of them," an official explained. "If they had a couple more years on them, it might be different.

"Apparently they've had pretty good care. They were well fed and their clothes neat. They didn't call for any relatives.

"Temporarily they are being kept in our nursery, with other children of their age, and they seem happy. If their parents aren't found, we will treat them like other foundlings."

"Sis" and "Sonny" were the first children abandoned at the 15-year-old institution.

DIANE DOBBS
Warren

It is a great pleasure to admire a lassie like this one with large, brown eyes. She seems to say that she has greater fields to conquer, and is off to a good start. Her forces are rallying for a continued onslaught upon Baby Votes. Her smiling courage, as a child, should urge the hearts of the community voters to strive without ceasing, until the crown of "Queen of Babyland" is won. Without a doubt she has the necessary confidence. Diane has blond, curly hair and weighs 32 pounds. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Dobbs, 324 Water street, Warren. Mrs Matilda Dobbs, Yellville, Arkansas, and Mrs. Albert Lawson, of Meadville, are her grandmothers. This friendly little personality, who likes dolls and kittens, is very sincere in her desire to win the title of "Community's Favorite Baby," the $500 top prize and the large engraved cup.

THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS SPENT ON ROAD IMPROVEMENT IN COUNTY BY HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT OF STATE

By the end of the present road construction season, thousands of dollars will have been spent by the Pennsylvania Department of Highways on road improvement projects in Warren county, it was revealed this week by S. W. Jackson, of Franklin, district engineer for the department.

More than a half million dollars is being paid to contractors for a half dozen projects in the county, while $200,000 more is being spent on work which is being done by department forces.

Largest of the contract jobs is the Warren-Jamestown road improvement between the Warren borough and Pine Grove township lines. This contract alone calls for the expenditure of $401,907.03 to the Tri-State Engineering Company. This road is 4.25 miles in length and varies from 33 to 35 feet in width.

One other contract job is still under way. This is the Garland bridge construction project, which has been delayed by inability to obtain necessary steel. Cost of this project, on which W. P. Dickerson is the contractor, is $55,330 30.

Largest project already completed is the resurfacing and widening of U. S. route 6 between Clarendon and Sheffield. Started last year by Mayer Bros. Construction Company, this work was finished this year at a cost of $66,-416 17. It includes 2.72 miles of highway.

Two additional bridge contracts have been completed. One was the 108-foot bridge and approaches east of Corydon, built at a cost of $16,706.73 by the Tonawanda Construction Company, and the other was a 37-foot reinforced concrete bridge on route 61012 at Pittsfield, built at a cost of $11,854.55 by W. L. Dunn.

Total cost of the contract work in the county was $571,469.43.

Nine projects were carried on by department forces in the county. All but three of these have been completed.

The uncompleted projects are as follows:

Route 61046—West from Clarendon borough toward Kalbfus Gun Club; two miles, 14-foot surface treated, 8-inch native stone base.

Route 61048—In Warren borough (Hemlock street); .38 of a mile, 18-foot surface treated, 8-inch native stone base.

Route 61062—West from route 94 between Warren and Russell (Lover's Lane road); 3.54 miles of 14-foot, 8-inch run of bank gravel.

The following projects have been completed:

Route 61012—Between Tidioute and Pittsfield, 3.40 miles of 14-foot surface treated, 8-inch native stone base.

Route 61031—West of Sheffield, 1.70 miles of 14-foot surface treated, 8-inch native stone base.

Route 61037—North of Scandia, 1.00 mile of 14-foot surface treated 8-inch native stone base.

Route 61058—West from route 94 at Warren (Follette Run Road), .76 of a mile of 14-foot surface treated, 8-inch native stone base.

Route 253—Between Forest county line and Barnes, 3.09 miles of 16-foot surface treated, 8-inch stone base.

Route 61011—In Tidioute borough, 34-foot bridge and approaches. This project was completed with WPA labor.

POLES BROKEN OFF BY STORM AT SHEFFIELD

Sheffield, Oct. 11—A high wind accompanying a storm which hit the community late yesterday afternoon levelled three telephone-telegraph poles along the Pennsylvania railroad right-of-way, near the Utopian theatre, spilling all three and the numerous attached wires across the main track of the railroad. Fortunately, there were no trains due through here at the time.

Emil Hjelm, this place, an employe of the railroad who is station agent at Ludlow and at times is employed in the local station, made the discovery as he was on his way home from work. Warnings were immediately dispatched to Kane and Warren and were relayed to the crews of trains scheduled to pass through here, voiding the possibility of a wreck and preventing any further damage to the downed wires.

A section crew worked until late last night righting the poles after removing them from the track. The wind had snapped the poles off at the ground level. Trains coming through in early evening while the main track was still blocked were forced to use a siding to get around the debris

Financing America

THE DISCOVERY of America was the result of enterprise, aided by the necessary financing. Columbus's voyage was made possible by the resourcefulness of Queen Isabella, who sold her jewels to provide funds. Today, business enterprise is furthered by the credit facilities of a modern banking system. This bank offers constructive credit cooperation in sound business needs.

October 5, 1941

A very strenuous week has been put in by all of the men in the 112th Infantry and they are all only too glad to see this week-end of rest come to them. It seems that there have been more details going around this area than any seven outfits could ever find. However, all of the men have come through this week with only a few minor accidents and although there were a very small number of deaths it was considered a very well spent week.

We have been very lucky as far as a camp site is concerned because we have at our disposal a very fine clear water lake to swim in and also very good showers but to balance that we also have oceans of the very whitest kind of sand. This sand is a very annoying thing because you have to eat it, sleep in it and every time you take a step you can see large clouds of dust rolling up over the troops as they march along and it is no job to find them. If you can't see the men all you have to do is look for a large cloud of dust and there they are marching along and sweating like they were about to drop.

We start on minor maneuvers this coming Monday and we really don't know much about what is coming off but we know that whatever it is there will be lots of hard work and it will be without a doubt a very good starter for the largest maneuvers this organization has ever been in. We have with us a branch of the U. S. Balloon Corps and also the different bombardment and pursuit squadrons that make a complete fighting force. Of course no unit would be complete without a tank corps and we have with us one of these units and it is with quite a little enthusiasm that the men are looking forward to fighting against these monsters of steel.

There has been a terrible uprising here in the company and every morning it seems to get worse. It seems that our 1st Sgt. Joseph L. Schearer is lonesome for his little honey, the wife. Well, we know how it is but you should see the way we suffer for it. Upon rising in the morning it sounds like an avalanche coming down one of the steepest mountains in the United States. His mighty voice echoes and resounds up and down the company street with, "come on you guys, roll out before I come in there and tear the tent down."

Well, it is quite a thing having our first sergeant married but, oh my, does he have to keep on tearing at us this way. Please someone write to him and kind of calm his nerves.

Well, it looks like it is going to be a very warm time for us down here. As yet the temperature is just about 95 degrees every day and it doesn't seem to be getting a darned bit cooler. We hope that it cools off before we start out on our big maneuvers because it will be with no small toll that the fellows will hit dirt long before they are supposed to. You see, heat is one of the worst things the army has to combat in the larger war games because the men are on the move so much that they really don't get much time to rest and it knocks them out before they have much of a chance.

All of last week was spent in getting our camp site in shape for living quarters and believe us it was quite a job. We had to build improvised beds from poles cut by the men and chicken wire which was bought in town. Then all of the men were issued an equal amount of straw and they all filled their bed ticks and it doesn't make a bad bed but right now all of the boys are trying to figure out how they are going to keep their bunks from falling through. Oh well, worse things have befell us and we have come through with flying colors so this one surely won't throw us.

It has just been brought to your correspondent's attention that the city of Greensboro has invited the entire 28th Division back there on their way home and it was stated that as many as could be taken care of would be put up in private homes for their week-end stay there So you can easily see that the 28th Division is holding up their reputation as not only fighting men but a very well mannered outfit. We wish to express our thanks to the town of Greensboro and we hope that we will be able to come back to their very fine city and spend another week-end.

We have just received word here in the orderly tent that there will be approximately 425,000 soldiers in the large maneuvers and this will be the largest maneuvers held in the United States. It is definitely larger than the maneuvers held in Louisiana and we are sure it will be a very exciting time for all of the different units concerned.

Being that we have not as yet started on any definite action we can not give you much more news as to what is to happen so we will close this column and until next time remember those letters help a lot when the boys are a long way from home and they really are just that now.

SOME RAMBLING THOUGHTS

Almost two hundred public spirited men and women, whose close touch with the organization over a period of years, has given them a keen appreciation as to what the Young Women's Christian Association really means to the community, are ready to launch the Emancipation Campaign, which will open with a dinner Monday evening. The united support of every citizen will enable them to put the drive across to a successful conclusion.

With representatives present from eighteen parishes in the Diocese of Erie, Warren will be honored with the presence of a large delegation of sincere churchmen when the annual fall lay conference of the Convocation of Ridgway convenes in Trinity Memorial Episcopal church tomorrow afternoon. This is an unusual event and it is interesting to note that a cordial invitation is extended the public to attend.

If the Warren High School Dragons should fail to take over the Red and Green gridsters at Jamestown this afternoon it cannot be blamed on any lack of enthusiasm exhibited by the Blue and White students and fans during the pep demonstration last evening.

Our congratulations and best wishes for a very successful year are extended to William I. Walker, elected commander, and his new staff of officers of the Chief Cornplanter Post, American Legion, who will be installed with appropriate ceremonies Monday evening.

It is a little disappointing to learn that the highway from the borough line to Venturetown is not to be improved this fall, but those responsible for the delay should not be censured. Slides along that stretch of road would prove a menace to motorists between now and spring.

The Warren police department deserves a word of commendation for the excellent manner in which the crowd in the downtown section was handled last evening. The officers all tempered authority with good judgment and everybody seemed to have a good time.

Through the efforts of the progressive Civic Club of that community, it is a foregone conclusion that there will be a hot time in North Warren on the evening of October 29th!

A host of friends in Warren and surrounding communities are saddened by news of the death of Dr. Ira Darling, former superintendent of the North Warren State Hospital, who passed away last evening after a short illness.

WEEKLY SERMONETTE

HOW TO BECOME STORMPROOF
J. C. BENGSTON
Bethlehem Congregational Church

"He arose and rebuked the winds and the sea; and there was a great calm."—Matthew 8:26.

Man is often overawed and overwhelmed by the powers external to him. Before the might of wind and wave, fire and earthquake, his strength by comparison is insignificant. More ferocious and more devastating are the storms within his mind and spirit. Fear, anxiety and despair, arising from real or imagined causes, cause more damage to human values than the outward phenomena mentioned above. Knowing that we may meet these powers, outward or inward, is it possible for us to become "stormproof?"

Upon embarking, the disciples had on this occasion taken Jesus with them. The Master of wind and wave was present in their frail craft. The essence of Christianity in companionship with God, entered into by volition on our part, by virtue of His love and promise. Nothing can they befall us without befalling Him. "In all their afflictions He was afflicted, and the angel of His presence saved them." How many have been kept from sinking in despair, through every imaginable human experience, by the assurance of His presence.

During the course of the journey and the storm, the disciples further kept the Master informed of their danger. They voiced their needs and desires, though knowing His nearness. While we walk by faith and not by sight, our dealings with the invisible Companion need to be definite, for our sake, if not for His. Not that God is dependent on long prayers on our part in order to help us. Our "Lord help" may be all that is necessary to conquer the storm, especially if prayer has not been neglected in fair weather. At any rate, the storm within will be calmed, whatever outward tempests may be raging.

I am aware of the objection that there is the last storm to which everyone must succumb, even the most devout. As a final item in our becoming stormproof, we should be reconciled to any eventuality. Thus the would-be tragedy becomes merely the celestial chariot, "coming for to carry me home." Seen from the right viewpoint, the storm becomes the very gate of heaven.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Sport note: Purists at golf will be pained to hear that the staid English have unbent sufficiently to permit club members to take air raid shelter during bombing without being penalized a stroke.

This revolutionary news was contained in a letter to film star Basil Rathbone from colleagues in London, and the rules further state:

"In golf competitions during gunfire or when bombs are falling players may take cover without penalty. . . . A player whose stroke is affected by the simultaneous explosion of a bomb or shell or machine-gun fire may play another ball from the same place—penalty, one stroke. . . . Players are asked to collect bomb and shell splinters to avoid damage to the mowers."

Quiz: While we're on the subject of England, how many fully sovereign states do you think there are left in Europe? . . . The answer is—Andorra, Eire, Liechtenstein, Monaco, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, and Vatican City.

The palm for quick wit goes to that young Dutch housewife who was arrested recently in Holland for listening to a British broadcast. . . . She defended herself by declaring, "After the fall of France, Adolf Hitler announced that in October he would speak over the English wireless. I was so afraid of missing this historic speech. . . ."

* * *

Bands like to feature small combinations, usually with lyrical presentations, and they strive for effective names. For instance Orrin Tucker calls his combination "The Body Guards" . . . Blue Barron styles his "The Three Blue Notes." . . . Thus it is that Teddy Powell announces a new combination within his orchestra to be known as "The Teddy Bears." . . . In this group the orchestra leader himself plays guitar—first time in four years he has handled anything other than a baton.

* * *

So far, only one of the new plays has come in for what may be called "the withering fire" of the drama critics. . . . This is the comedy starring Gladys George, and of it one critic wrote: "Miss Gladys George frolicked about in her make-up box at the Longacre last night, put on the white hair and parchment skin of age, and almost withered away as a frail but gusty antique who is the central character in Edwin B. Self's 'The Distant City.' Her misfortune, I fear, is that the play withered away first, leaving her, like a hitch-hiker on a detoured road, without a vehicle."

Other reviews were in similar vein, which means that the boys seem to have found their batting eyes early this year.

Turkey's Inonu Admires U. S. and Great Britain

PRESIDENT of Turkey's fence-sitting republic is gray-haired, olived-skinned Ismet Inonu, who finds himself embroiled in the dangerous game of power politics.

Turkey, coveted defender of the Dardanelles, is under pressure from both the Allies and Axis. Germany could use the Dardanelles to launch a flank attack on Russia and also a naval war in the Black Sea. England needs Turkey to protect newly-acquired territories in Iraq and Iran.

Thus 61-year-old Inonu has been forced to play the devious game of appeasement. Turkey's course is not clear but it is likely to be whichever one Inonu chooses.

A compensating feature for the Allies is Inonu's admiration for England and the United States. One of his leading policies has been the westernization of Turkey. The 1939 stamp above, which pictures President Roosevelt, Inonu and a map of North America, is an excellent example of Turkey's friendly attitude toward this country. It was issued in commemoration of the 150th anniversary of the Constitution of the United States.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON — Congress is back on the job. Theoretically of course, it has never been off, but actually since the passage of the defense tax bill the gentlemen have been on a holiday.

Most went back home to do pulse-taking and fence mending. There are straws in the wind indicating that contact with the voters is going to change votes in the House and Senate — hints that perhaps there will not be so much opposition to the administration's foreign policy—and stronger opposition to non-defense spending.

Congress takes these unofficial holidays by a simple expediency. According to the rules, neither house can adjourn for more than three days. Majority and minority leaders in both houses make a gentleman's agreement that no controversial matters will be brought up. Then on Mondays and Thursdays, or Tuesdays and Fridays, the House and Senate go through their formalities.

A handful of stay-behinds assemble. Routine business is transacted—"by unanimous consent"—and this is possible because the majority and minority leaders are always on hand to see that the opposition doesn't slip something over. Since it only takes one "I object" to knock a "unanimous consent" into the middle of the next real session, it's only necessary for a few good party watch dogs to be on hand. Most of the members of Congress are away.

Now that period is over. Congress hasn't reassembled in recent years with observers more keenly observant, or the political, departmental, and administrative leaders more eager to know what direction the legislative tide is going to take.

The explanation is simple. Take one squint at the three major measures due for immediate consideration:

(1) The new six billion dollar Lend-Lease bill. (Of the three pending measures this is considered by most observers the least likely to encounter major opposition. However, there is one vital point in it out of which the isolationists are certain to make capital—how much of it is going to (Russia?)

(2) Repeal or modification of the Neutrality Act. This is sure to be a battle royal. A recent senate poll, which lacked any definite commitments from 41 senators, indicated that some modification of the Act (either outright repeal or arming of American merchant vessels, which would be allowed to operate in all or part of the combat zones) is favored by the upper house.

(3) Price control legislation—and this undoubtedly will be a honey of a scrap.

In the two latter instances, it is not certain right now that the administration knows what it wants. Expressions from administration leaders on the Neutrality Act show that there's a split in the ranks, some favoring outright repeal, others merely modification. To complicate the situation further, one administration senator declared the other day that the President, if he wanted to, could practically nullify the Neutrality Act, as far as shipping is concerned, merely by revoking his proclamations recognizing the war and establishing combat zones. He then could order merchant vessels armed and let them go anywhere. Some observers, who know their "powers of the President," point out that this technicality had already been resorted to, in a measure, in clearing the way for shipping in the Red Sea.

As for price control legislation, the big fuss will come over what kind of machinery will be established to administer and whether control should include farm prices and wages.

JACKETS READY FOR BEAVER VALLEY CHALLENGE TOMORRO

PROMISE MORE FIGHT AGAINST GIANTS; EVERY MAN READY TO TURN BACK TITLE CONTENDERS

Ready to battle like they never have before this season, with every man on the squad set to turn in sixty minutes of real football, the Warren Red Jackets plan to flog the Beaver Valley Giants, but good, in the latter club's quest for the western Pennsylvania semi-pro football championship on Russell Field tomorrow.

With three victories interrupted in the past week by two deadlocks, the local pros are looking for their fourth triumph of the campaign and are eager to record it against the Giants tomorrow afternoon.

With every player in shape for the contest, including Joe Bizzaro who injured his knee in the Wednesday night game against Aliquippa at Corry, the Jackets will be at full strength to meet the challenge of the Beaver Valley eleven.

Fans, who are trying to forget those two stalemates, especially the last one which was with a club having lost four straight ball games so far until Wednesday evening, are expected to turn out in large numbers to see if this time the Jackets really can produce the goods.

Warren's team this year has everything it needs to be one of the best, if not the best local professional eleven in history, but for some reason which no one can explain, have thus far failed to show all of their power. At times they've played like the champions which they are, but in other instances they have fallen down to a level far below that calibre of ball.

In Beaver Valley, twin contenders for the crown with Trafford, whom the Jackets tied last Sunday 7-7, the Reesemen will find plenty of opposition. The Giants boast a heavy line of veterans, flashy backs who find their holes and get through them in a split second, and a well-drilled club from the best to the least capable player on the squad, though there isn't any one player who can be called the best, nor are there any that haven't plenty of ability.

The crowd may be swelled by fans who will attend the fracas mainly to see Check and Brown in their final appearance at home before they leave Monday for Alfred University at Alfred, N. Y.

Popular prices will prevail. The officials will be Piney Johnson, Louis Brown and Gerry Peterson in their regular posts of referee, umpire and head linesman, and the kickoff is slated for 2:30 p. m.

In plants, annuals last only one year; perennials last more than two years.

Probable Lineups

Sirianni	C	Nelle
Amann	RG	Hoffman
Leson	RT	Groom

Montgomery Stops Davey Day in First

Chicago, Oct. 11—(AP)—Bob Montgomery, hard-punching Philadelphia Negro, sounded the death knell to Davey Day's ring career last night.

The aggressive easterner, top-flight contender for the lightweight championship, knocked out Day in the first round of their scheduled 10-rounder before 6,790 spectators in the Chicago Stadium's first indoor fight of the season.

The victory was Montgomery's 11th in a row and further emphasized his eligibility for a fight with the winner of the Lew Jenkins-Sammy Angott title fight. Jenkins is recognized as the champion in New York and Angott is the titleholder of the National Boxing Association.

Conewango Club Loop Starts Monday Night

The Conewango Club bowling league gets under way Monday night of next week when the McClures and Pettibones wrap themselves in a match which will test the strength of Samuel Montgomery's warriors against real competition.

Tuesday night it'll be the Yergs vs. Trevenens and through the week it will be Ejers vs. Parshalls on Wednesday, and Logans vs. Ericksons on Friday.

Each team in the circuit owns a roster of nine men, which will allow plenty of replacements or substitutions.

The club is hoping to make this season their greatest in the history of Conewango Club kegling, and every bowler in the circuit is asked by the club to be present on the nights when his team is to bowl, to keep the loop rolling along smoothly.

ATTENTION RACE FANS

Races scheduled to run Sunday, October 5th at Little Valley Fair Grounds were postponed because of rain.

These races will be run off Sunday, October 12th. This race is the Championship Race for the S. T. R. C. boys and a large field of 23 cars is scheduled to be on hand to finish off the last race of the season.

Race fans, to miss this event is to miss the greatest speed classic ever run in this section.

The place—Little Valley, New York.

The time—Sunday, October 12th at 2:30 p. m.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

"Strategy" is the LOST word in boxing this day and age, what with the New York boxing solons handing down more verdicts than they have reasons for, and slapping them on innocent bystanders along Cauliflower Avenue in the borough of Fistiana. Suspending Ray Carlen and Ray Arcel, manager and trainer-second, respectively, of Lou Nova, is the biggest laugh, and the big wigs who answer to the title "We Three" are getting more bombardment from all sides than Yogi Lou received from Louis. For trying to use strategy in the only way they deemed possible to beat the champion, both of them got sentenced to six months, which means they can't make an official appearance in a New York State ring during that period. This was brought on due to the fact that Lou didn't go out there and see who could hit the hardest, he or Louis, from the opening bell. As Whitney Martin, popular AP columnist, brought out, the solons cared not if Nova stayed 15 rounds or was knocked kicking in the first, but they would have said nothing if Lou had won the title in fifteen rounds by decision. Oh, well, grin and bear it!

The Red Jackets being an institution supported by the citizens, this corner takes pleasure in voicing a few suggestions made by the many fans who are paying, and dearly, to see the Jacket team play this autumn, and so far haven't seen too much. From what we gather, they'd all like to see more of Ernie Sedon, "Bullet Bill" Graham, Galla and Ganza, and Frank Martines, now that he has finally come into his own this fall, after anything but a dazzling start. They'd appreciate a more aggressive line, more co-operation and more timely substitutions. Why more passes weren't tossed in Kuntzelman's direction at Corry is a mystery a good many fans would like to have solved, and why does the passer get rushed off his feet so often? Many are the times this season when Check has been forced to do a dance ten yards behind the scrimmage line to get free of the foe in order to toss a pass, and certainly the Jackets haven't been drilled to go "all out on the offense" and let the opposing forward wall rush in on the passer like to take him by storm. Therefore, someone, somewhere, isn't doing his part in the attack. Time and again we've heard comment that the best starting lineup the Jackets could use would be Harold Sedon and now Kuntzelman at wings, Ganza and Leson at tackles, Rosequist and Amann at guards, and Sirianni at center, to compose the line. In the backfield, the starters, in the minds of the fans, ought to be Check, Brown and Bizzaro, and Graham. While this corner would make a few changes in the eleven, that's what the fans want to see, and, after all, who's keeping the Red Jacket team on the field?

One of the best sport gags to come down the twisted line in a long time is this little story about South Carolina's colorful halfback of the early '30's, Earl Clary. Subject of several humorous yarns, this one takes the cake concerning Clary. The Gamecocks were playing an overwhelmingly favored Auburn eleven and were expected to be pushovers, but had staged a whale of a battle. With time left for but a single play, Carolina's ball deep in Auburn territory, and the Gamecocks in a huddle, the situation was tense. Clary, in the center of the excited South Carolina huddle, looked up cooly at a scoreboard at the far end of the field and exclaimed: "Holy smokes! Army's got Notre Dame 7-0!" Then the Gamecocks lined up, the ball went back to Clary, and he ran it over for a touchdown. The point was good and the game ended 20-20.

There's an odd setup in the K. of C. standings thus far this campaign. No team has taken three points to date, either four, a split, or nothing—that's the way the Caseys play. For instance, Fordham, leading the circuit, won the first match, split the second and copped the third. Holy Cross, in second place, lost their first match and have won their other two. Santa Clara, third placers, have don everything. They won, split, and then lost. While Notre Dame in the cellar is consistent, if not strong. They have been blanked three straight matches.

The Elks didn't do bad last evening in setting new records in every department, which you may observe in the league standings elsewhere, and Grosch, Andersen and Ruggaber came through with respective games of 212, 224, 222.

FOR THE LOVE OF PA

Chapter 28

Wise Girl

MAY'S smile was hard, it had the grotesque effect of seeming to crack her face.

"All I can get is when I'm paid, Jerry," she said softly. "All I can get. You wouldn't want me to talk?" she asked. "I can make an awful noise, you know. The woman scorned! You've heard about them?"

"I can't get money where there isn't any." He turned to her coldly. "Why do women like you always want money?"

"Your yacht's still down there in the basin. Oh, yes, you've taken a cottage instead of staying on at the hotel, but that doesn't mean so much. You've still got your cars. You wouldn't be kidding me? You haven't," she was speaking slowly and with a distinctly unpleasant intonation, "got another girl?"

"That's something you have no right to think about, let alone ask about!"

"Oh, so that's it! You have. Broke. That was a tale to tell me. Broke. I thought that couldn't happen without wind of it getting around up North. But you'll have to think faster than that, Jerry. I'm going to find that girl, get to her and tell her what you really are. I'm going to tell her you promised to marry me."

"You wouldn't do that?" he exclaimed in startled anger. "It would be a lie."

"Wouldn't I? Just watch me."

"You're even more poisonous than I thought."

"I have to use the weapons that come to hand, Jerry. I'm just fighting for my living. After all, I've got to eat, have a roof, and dress!"

"And it wouldn't occur to you to work. You're smart, May. I should think you'd see how much easier it would be to earn your way than to resort to all of this scheming."

There was loathing in his voice. He was comparing her suddenly with Pam and her eager willingness to work with her hands and brain, to be independent. Pam was a new kind of girl to him, and one that he found himself admiring and respecting even more than ever.

"I take the way I know," May was saying.

"Yes. Schemes. But all of this isn't getting us anywhere. What do you expect me to do? I'm no miracle man. I can't pick money out of the air. I've wasted my life. I know that now. I have no way of getting money for you. I don't see why I should. You've wasted your life playing. You knew what you were doing. I won't lean on the excuse that I didn't. And now that I'm broke and worthless to any woman, I'm asking you to do just one decent thing and release me, forget me. Find someone else. You are still attractive. That should be easy for you."

May smiled. "You're very clever," she said quietly. "But flattery does not work with me. I'm too wise for that, boy."

"You're not very wise if you continue to hang around me, because there's going to be nothing in it—no gay life or expensive parties. Unless," he looked up at her sharply, "you'll get pleasure out of hurting me."

The girl grinned diabolically, and Jerry knew that he was being shown another facet of her temperament. She would enjoy making him unhappy. Jerry was a little startled at that. Meaningless hatred and vengefulness had always startled him.

Proposal

JERRY shrugged helplessly. He rose.

"All right, if that's the way you feel about it. But if the thing backfires and burns you, don't squeal. You're bent on spoiling things." He paused a second. "Well, where do you want me to drop you?"

"At the hotel," May said slowly, "after I've had another drink. I need it after the talk you've been handing me."

"You don't need another drink, May. And there's better reason why you aren't going to have another. I can't pay for it. Come on. Get moving." He was walking toward the door.

The girl's eyes following him were bitter and hard. She swaggered a little as she finally moved after him. Jerry was standing beside the car, waiting for her. May got in silently. On the way in, neither made any attempt at conversation. At her hotel Jerry stopped the car and got out to help her out.

"There's going to be a bill to be paid here, you know," May said as she stepped down beside him.

"You're telling me?" Jerry said ironically. "And why? I've never paid your bills and I'm not beginning to do any such foolhardy thing now." He turned to May suddenly. Then as if on a new thought: "Just why have you come down here?" he asked. "Just what do you want?"

May looked at him for a full moment, her eyes meeting J steadily.

"Can't you guess?" she finally. "I want you to marry

"Marry you?"

"Yes, marry me. I'm tir playing around, Jerry. I w home. Things I can tie to my own for the rest of my You're the one man I've quarrelled with, until now." last two words came after tle silence. Jerry, who had been looki her as if really seeing her fo first time in his life, said a and still in that shocked ton

"Marry you!"

"Yes, and why not? Why Jerry?" Her voice softened tle. "We like the same thing have gay times together. I ur stand you better than that E person ever could."

Jerry turned to her earne

"Look, May," he said, learned things down here. O them is that I want to marry love. You'll learn that, too, day. I'm saying this for good. You come from a nice ily. Helping Lenore

JERRY didn't bother to re but walked quietly aroun his side of the car, got in drove away. No use talking ther to May. He had n dreamed she would want marry him. They had never talked of love or marriage. idea was a distinct shock to

But Jerry Winthrope had his reckoning without actu knowing the ins and outs of character of a girl like May bee, who had lived for years her wit, the bounty of her fri and her complete lack of sense of fair play.

Jerry was due to see Pam night. He dreaded it a little. could he tell her about May? it was foolish to think he c keep it from her now. May w see to that.

Meanwhile Pam had her problems to settle. Should she Jerry about Jim Perry and nore, and ask him to warn nore? Or should she go to nore? Lenore had snubbed he unmercifully that would be difficult. She would find it hard to talk to Lenore after that had happened.

Besides, Pam had not, for s strange reason, been able to get the girl on the beach. It silly, she knew, for Jerry ha right to talk to whom he pleas and naturally would talk t great many girls.

But Pam couldn't get over feeling that the meeting on beach was something more t mere chance.

That feeling was heightened Jerry's behavior that even There was constraint about h Pam felt, in spite of his effort hide it. His gayety was forced

He left reluctantly. It seem good-night had never been hard to say. He turned at his and blew a kiss back to her. P watched until the tail-light no longer visible, then turn slowly back to the house.

As she undressed, her thoug returned to Lenore and J Perry. The first thing Pam in the morning was telepho Freda and ask her to lunch.

Freda arrived in violet slac and a raspberry shirt. She casually gay. Pam waited u they were at table to bring the subject of Lenore.

"And I thought," she conclu ed, "that you'd know how manage. You know, tell Leno Jim Perry isn't the sort should be playing around wit

Lunch With Freda

H, I hope Lenore hasn't done anything foolish," Pam said estly.

Don't let it. After all, no one do anything with Lenore once 's made up her mind."

Then you won't even try to do thing?" Pam said regretfully. e had counted on Freda.

Freda grinned. "I've never cied myself as fate or Provi- ice," she said. "Especially ere a girl like Lenore is con- ned. If she wants to play with , it's her own funeral!"

Pam felt there was nothing re she could say. She couldn't ge Freda further. Perhaps eda was right. Her own stand- ds might be small-town. Freda d the sophistication city life d given her.

Freda was looking around. rough the arch she could see o Pam's workroom, where her ole was filled with unfinished ders. Her eyes were suddenly cious and slightly wistful.

"It must be a grand feeling to of some use," she said frankly. d give anything to be able to something. I'm just" — she inned wryly at herself—"hang- g around waiting for some rich an to fall for my bait. I'd been ping it would be Jerry. You e, I'm an open rival of yours! was. But I'd feel rich as a rthday cake if I had a talent cked up my sleeve. I mean, ally, something that would be eful, so I'd feel I have a right the space I take up in the orld."

"You could learn to do any- ing," Pam said, quietly.

"I couldn't. I haven't got the idurance. You see, I know my- lf. I look myself square in the ce every now and then and call yself by my right name. I don't ke it at all. But I haven't got hat it takes to change."

"Why should you?" Pam asked ten. "You have money, so why hould you try to change your- lf into a worker? I think when eople have money it's much nicer loaf and spend it, be charitable nd make work for others, instead f trying to increase an already arge fortune." Pam smiled at reda.

"You're trying to say something ice now to make me feel better for eing the lazy spendthrift I am," reda laughed. "Anyhow, its a ice philosophy, and thanks for aying it! And don't worry about enore any more. Let her play nd, if there's a penalty, let er pay. People make their own ves."

Pam felt, after Freda left, that he had been given still another nd entirely new slant on life. She ondered that new philosophy as he worked with her palm leaves hat afternoon.

And Freda lightheartedly turned er wheel toward Flagler Avenue, topping at the Winthrope cot- age. Jerry was there alone when he walked in. Bart and Adele ad gone to the Keys for a drive, e explained, and might stay for inner.

Ice Box Supper

FREDA startled Jerry a little when she told him where she had been.

"She's too sweet," Freda said. Sincere and fine. If she wants ou, Jerry, she deserves you—oh, a lot more than I do." The girl ooked at him intently. "If I could really believe you're broke, I night not regret letting her have you without a struggle. I've stepped out of the picture grace- fully, darling, you must admit. Well, I couldn't stand not having money — even with you, my sweet."

"Rave on, Freda." Jerry said easily, "just as if you had some- thing to do with it."

"Well, I could at least put up a fight," she said. "It isn't too late for that. You're not married yet, you know."

"Yes, that's about the best thing you do."

"But, as I said darling, I won't. I'd hate being poor. Imagine me washing baby clothes! For, of course, we'd have children. Babies are sweet and complete life, round it out, when you can turn the unpleasant details over to some- one else."

"And I presume you'd turn the unpleasant little detail of hav- ing them over to someone else, too?" Jerry asked in sarcasm. He was not in too pleasant a mood. May Frisbee with her insistence was getting on his nerves. If only, he though, staring at Freda and scarcely seeing her, girls wouldn't take you so seriously. And if only he hadn't played so carelessly and so hard.

"Oh, no. I'd want to do that. But all the rest, except kissing them, showing them off in their best clothes in their sweetest mo- ments, we'd have others do for us."

"We would?"

"Yes, darling, we would. And I can't believe the Winthrope money is gone. Fortunes don't just evaporate like that. It's like one of those weird tales you hear about but never actually come in contact with—I mean, Bart losing his money. He just isn't the kind of man who does that. Not Bart Winthrope."

"You seem to know every- thing."

"Yes, I think I do," she said. "And I hope it isn't gone. Pam deserves things. I've got to be that fair, anyhow, Jerry."

And, though Jerry got restive, Freda stayed on. Once or twice, as he looked out, he was sure he caught a glimpse of May Frisbee passing slowly. Not that it meant anything. She had already done about all she could do. Finally he turned to Freda in exasperation.

"Blow, will you, Freda?" he asked. "I've got a date tonight and I don't like to leave you alone."

"Darling, is that the way to treat a girl who's practically dying of love for you? All but shovel her out of your house? Come on, let's have dinner to- gether!" She moved toward the kitchen and began examining the- ice box. "I can serve from an ice box like nobody's business, and all the makings are here." She was getting out food. "I'm starved. You wouldn't turn a girl from your door hungry, would you?"

"I'll probably be committing murder if you keep on!"

Freda went blithely on, with all of the assurance of her giddy young set, and Jerry sat down to the ice-box meal she had put on the table. Freda had delayed so long and spent so much time fool- ing as she got the meal that Jerry knew he was going to be late. He liked Freda, however, respected her good sportsmanship.

"Remember," she admonished as he left, late for his date. "I'm not sure I'm giving you up to her. It's liable to be a fight to the finish." Her voice was gay, but Jerry caught a serious note under it. He knew she was jok- ing, that she knew there was only friendship for them in the future. But he knew Freda still cared in her way.

He left the house unlocked. That seemed to be the accepted thing. Freda could stay on if she wished until Bart and Adele re- turned. They had always liked Freda.

Call From Vin

FREDA stood on the piazza of the Flagler house and watched until the figures of Jerry and Blaze, moving swiftly toward Division Street, were soft blurs in the half light.

She was thoughful as she went to her bicycle, mounted it, and started back toward the hotel. What, she wondered, did Pam have that she did not? She hadn't been quite truthful when she'd said she didn't want Jerry with- out money. She wanted Jerry, poor or rich. It was Jerry she wanted, nothing else. And her mother, too, wanted him in the family. She would never forgive her for losing him.

Pam was as sweet and gracious as ever to Jerry. She hadn't seemed to notice he was late. Oddly that hurt him. He would have been a little better pleased if she'd made just a little scene.

They sat on the side steps for a long time and talked of all sorts of things. Her family. Jerry's. Her work. Work that Jerry might do. And finally they walked up- town for a soda. Jerry smiled a little at that. Generally at this time of evening on the dates he'd been accustomed to, things were beginning to get a little soggy and blurred. He liked the new order. He felt better. He laughed gently at Pam when she ordered chocolate.

"You're still just a baby!" he exclaimed. He liked the way she blushed as she smiled back at him. Most of the girls he knew never blushed any more. It was a thing that just wasn't done.

It was the following day that May, seeming to stroll meaning- lessly past Pam's attractive old place, stopped at the gate, stared for a space at the great Jacka- randa tree in gorgeous bloom and then walked in.

Pam was sitting in the yard with Vin Barolli, who had dropped in to talk with her. He was hurt to the quick by Lenore's recent con- duct. He knew she had been seen with Jim Perry and was afraid that association would end in no good. He realized it was only with de Bellefort Lenore wanted her name linked, and that seemed petty and lacking in courage to Vin. Still he loved her, and be- lieved she loved him.

"I can't help it," he said to Pam frankly, and then went on to talk of the song he had written for Lenore. It was finished finally. Pam had heard it in fragmentary form at one of the holiday parties.

"It's perfect for her," Vin said thoughtfully. "She could make it live. But I don't suppose she ever will. And, if she doesn't, no one will. It was written for her. I can't let anyone else sing it."

Vin looked toward the gate then. A girl was opening it.

"You're going to have com- pany," he said. "I'll be pushing off."

CONTRIBUTION OF THE CHURCH DURING WAR

"The greatest contribution the Church may make under the pressure of war," says Dr. M. Willard Lampe, of the University of Iowa, "is in the realm of a deeper self-discovery—the discovery that the Church is more than a church building or an ecumenical movement of any kind of organization: that, rather, it is an organism, or spiritual body, the body of Christ, the fellowship of those who really own Christ as Lord, who trust God as Father, who see in men then brothers, and who seek what Christ called the Kingdom of God. Such a discovery would mean not only the sloughing off of all secular accretions to the Church, but the subordination of the secondary and incidental and the putting of first things first. Among these first things are the spirit of humility, the spirit of inclusiveness, and, above all, the faith that Christ really can save every individual and also the social order as a whole. Such a self-discovery by the Church would be its greatest contribution in times like these."

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real?" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, October 12. The Golden Text is: "Heal me, O Lord, and I shall be healed; save me, and I shall be saved, for thou art my praise" (Jeremiah 17:14). Among Bible citations comprising the Lesson-Sermon is the following: "Art thou not from everlasting, O Lord my God, mine Holy One? we shall not die. Thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look on iniquity" (Habakkuk 1:12, 13). The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "God creates neither erring thought, mortal life, mutable truth, nor variable love. God, Spirit, dwelling in infinite light and harmony from which emanates the true idea, is never reflected by aught but the good." (p. 503).

BY WILLIAM E. McKENNE
America's Card Authority

On the way back to New Y from Asheville, we stopped of Philadelphia long enough to hello to Benjamin M. Golder, congressman from that disti and learned that he had just turned from the northern N York tournament held at Oswe

Mrs. Golder is nationally kno as an outstanding woman master. "Ben" has taken an terest in tournament bridge c in the last five years, but alre he has won enough points to rated a Master.

At Oswego, he played with M R. C. Young of Philadelphia, M L. C. Robinson and Dr. W. M Halsey of Oswego, a team m up at the last minute, and t crashed through for the team-four championship.

You can always count on Be bidding. It is as firm as the Ro of Gibraltar. His partner ne has to worry that he hasn't values, and that is how they s cessfully reached a slam contr on today's hand. Mrs. You played it in fine style to make contract.

On the opening lead, the ace spades won the queen. W guessed correctly that the le was not a singleton, so he shif to the ten of clubs. Mrs. You (North) played low and won dummy with the ace.

The ace and king of hearts to out the adverse trumps. Th followed the king of spades a a low spade ruff, on the char of dropping the jack.

When East showed out, M Young inferred that East was lo in diamonds and probably h the king of clubs. She therefo let out all her trumps and, su enough, East was squeezed in t minor suits. He finally had let go the king of clubs to ga all four diamonds.

College Club Hears Excellent Review of 'Watch on the Rhine'

Mrs. Ryman has a very pleasing personality and a charming way of presenting her topic. It was done entirely from memory, with a careful emotional build-up and splendid delineation of character.

Mrs. Jordan Overturf and her committee were in charge of serving refreshments to conclude the evening.

Players' Selection Of "Kind Lady" Will Please the Audience

Versatility of the Warren Players will again be demonstrated on October 23-24, when they present as their first public show of the year "Kind Lady", a drama adapted from a story by Hugh Walpole. For this 29th public production the Players have selected a type of play that is somewhat different from any they have given before.

"Kind Lady" is a play so filled with suspensense that it leaves the audience sitting on the edges of seats waiting for the end—and what an ending it is! There is an exciting variety and contrast in characters, convincingly portrayed by the cast, plus a bit of humor, much mystery and a sinister strain throughout, making it a show well worth seeing.

The main action takes place in the living room of Mary Herries' home in London, this room reflecting her excellent taste and character, and many of its furnishings, pictures in particular, are objets d'art.

The plot is concerned with a "kind lady", Mary Herries, who allows her "heart to swamp her good sense" when, on Christmas eve, she admits to her home a beggar—charming and intelligent, but nevertheless a scoundrel. Miss Herries is captivated by the unusual beggar, Henry Abbott, because of his recognition and appreciation of her fine pieces of art. Later she is induced, even against her own better judgment, to buy one of his very bad paintings.

By an unscrupulous ruse, Henry Abbott manages to bring into the Herries household his accomplices, Ada, Mr. and Mrs. Edwards and daughter, Aggie. They take over the complete management of the house under the domination of Henry, the brains behind this daring scheme. Conditions are made unbearable for Miss Herries' servants and they leave. Rose, the last to go, is suspicious of Henry from the beginning and she reluctantly leaves Miss Herries in the hands of Henry and his associates.

How does Henry subjugate Mary Herries? How does he conceal the true situation from her relatives? Her one close friend, who might have become an annoying problem in Henry's plans, was killed in an airplane crash. But how did he answer the questions of her niece's fiance? How could he allay the suspicions of the art dealer who came to buy a famous painting from the Herries collection? And finally, what was the outcome of Henry's careful scheming?

The answers to these disturbing questions will be revealed at the two performances of "Kind Lady", to be shown in the Woman's Club. Theatre-goers should not miss this play with its gripping story and terrific climax.

BERLIN

18th Soviet army was found on the southern battlefield.

Military commentators at the same time said hundreds of thousands of dead Russians lay on the battlefields around Bryansk, a focal point in the central front offensive.

These sources said the Soviet soldiers were mowed down by German gunners as they sought to escape encirclement by crawling through the German lines at night.

Signs of a possible encirclement of Moscow were seen in reports that the Nazis had launched a drive from the Valdai heights on the city of Rzhev, 135 miles northwest of Moscow and only 80 miles north of Vyazma, scene of bitter fighting.

Authoritative sources would not confirm reports that German columns evidently seeking to reach Moscow's rear by a northward push from Orel had captured the railway junction of Tula, 105 miles below Moscow.

Some of the heaviest fighting of the encirclement battles on the central front was reported to have taken place around Vyazma. The Germans have announced a 310-mile break-through running in a rough arc from Orel through Vyazma, respectively 220 miles south and 125 miles west of Moscow.

the Russians reported new German efforts to smash through northward since Thursday after an initial thrust was halted just beyond the city.

Fighting raged from dawn to dark with the Germans sending over waves of tanks in rising number, Red Star said. It acknowledged that Nazi infantry broke through to Soviet trenches in the night but declared they were repulsed and "the Fascists lost the day's battle."

On the southern front, the Germans were reported to be pressing toward the Ukrainian city of Melitopol, advancing at a number of points despite heavy losses.

Red Star said the Russians there conducted an orderly retreat, but "the situation remains extremely grave, with a direct danger threatening a number of the most important industrial centers of the sea of Azov region."

Moscow's chief immediate interest was at Vyazma.

Furious resistance along shortened central front defense lines previously had frustrated one of the main German plans of encirclement and apparently slowed down the offensive before Moscow, the Russians said.

In one sector, they declared, an entire German transport column rushing arms and ammunition to the front was destroyed by a minefield laid by Soviet guerrillas.

Red armies outflanked in the Bryansk sector 200 miles southwest of Moscow were reported to have withdrawn to new positions last night under cover of heavy counter-attacks.

The Soviet command thus was declared to have removed the danger of entrapment to its divisions farthest from the capital in the Vyazma-Bryansk-Orel battle zone and reestablished the defense arc menaced by the blow of German armored detachments.

MOCK BATTLE STAGED AT NEW YORK HARBOR

New York, Oct. 11—(AP)—A force of 1,500 men invaded Fort Tilden at the lip of New York Harbor in a mock battle early today and blasted the skyscrapers of Manhattan with more than 60,000 theoretical pounds of high explosives after capturing the strategic fort's 16-inch coast artillery guns.

In 30 minutes of war histrionics, the invaders, from Fort Hancock at Sandy Hook, loosed on the city about 40 imaginary shells weighing 2,300 pounds or more while on the sprawling grounds 500 defenders fought fiercely to dispel the enemy whose attack was, officially, a surprise.

The attack was declared a success by Brig. Gen. Philip S. Gage, Fort Tilden's commander.
